FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SERB Pharmaceuticals Agrees to Acquire Y-mAbs TherapeuticsAcquisition to Include DANYELZA® (Naxitamab-gqgk), Further Broadening SERB's Rare Oncology Product PortfolioTransaction Expands SERB's Investment in the U.S.SERB to Commence All-Cash Tender Offer to Acquire All Outstanding Shares of Y-mAbs for $8.60 Per ShareRepresents 105% Premium to Y-mAbs Closing Share Price on August 4, 2025*

WEST CONSHOHOCKEN, PA and PRINCETON, NJ, August 5, 2025 – SERB Pharmaceuticals (“SERB”), a global specialty pharmaceutical company focused on medicines for rare diseases and medical emergencies, and Y-mAbs Therapeutics, Inc. (Nasdaq: YMAB) (“Y-mAbs” or “the Company”), a commercial-stage biopharmaceutical company focused on the development and commercialization of antibody-based therapeutics for the treatment of cancer, today announced that they have entered into a definitive merger agreement under which SERB will acquire Y-mAbs, including its lead commercial oncology asset, DANYELZA® (naxitamab-gqgk), in an all-cash transaction, representing an equity value for Y-mAbs of approximately $412 million.

Under the terms of the merger agreement, SERB will commence an all-cash tender offer to purchase all outstanding shares of Y-mAbs common stock. Holders of Y-mAbs common stock would receive $8.60 per share in cash, representing a premium of approximately 105% to Y-mAbs' closing share price on August 4, 2025, the last full trading day prior to the transaction announcement.

The transaction was unanimously approved by the Y-mAbs Board of Directors following a review of strategic alternatives to maximize value for Y-mAbs stockholders, with the assistance of external advisors. The process included discussions with numerous potential buyers for Y-mAbs or for the DANYELZA or Radiopharmaceuticals businesses on a standalone basis. In addition, the Board reviewed potential sources of additional capital to support accelerating the further development of the Company's pipeline.

With a focus on pediatric oncology, Y-mAbs successfully developed and commercialized the anti-GD2 therapy, DANYELZA (naxitamab-gqgk). DANYELZA is the first FDA-approved treatment for relapsed or refractory high-risk neuroblastoma – a rare and aggressive pediatric cancer – and was approved in the United States under accelerated approval based on overall response rate and duration of response. DANYELZA is indicated for the treatment of pediatric patients one year of age and older and adult patients with relapsed or refractory high-risk neuroblastoma in the bone or bone marrow who have demonstrated a partial response, minor response, or stable disease to prior therapy. In addition to inpatient use, doctors can choose to administer DANYELZA in an outpatient setting, which may reduce the logistical burden on patients and their families. Y-mAbs' portfolio also includes an investigational therapy targeting GD2 in solid tumors and CD38 in circulating tumors in ongoing Phase 1 clinical trial from its Self-Assembly DisAssembly (“SADA”) Pretargeted Radioimmunotherapy Platform (“PRIT”).

Vanessa Wolfeler, Chief Executive Officer of SERB: “High-risk neuroblastoma is not only a rare and devastating pediatric cancer but also one of the most difficult to treat. DANYELZA is recognized as a critical treatment option for patients and expands the treatment pathways available to providers in an outpatient setting. Working together with the team from Y-mAbs, I believe we can continue generating data for this product, expand partnerships to additional oncology centers, and have a positive impact on the lives of more neuroblastoma patients and their families.”

Jeremie Urbain, Chairman of SERB: “Following SERB's expansion into the United States five years ago, this acquisition reflects another milestone in the execution of our growth strategy to build a leading global specialty pharma platform. DANYELZA is an excellent strategic fit for SERB as it strengthens our existing rare oncology portfolio and will allow us to leverage our existing global footprint and our medical, regulatory, and commercial expertise to expand the reach of DANYELZA to new markets.”

SERB has a growing portfolio of medicines for rare emergency medicine, rare diseases, and CBRN preparedness, supplying healthcare providers around the world. The acquisition of DANYELZA broadens SERB's existing Rare Oncology portfolio (Voraxaze®, Vistogard®, Xermelo®) and furthers its mission of building a leading portfolio of medicines that improve the standard of care for patients globally.

Michael Rossi, President, Chief Executive Officer and a member of the Board of Directors, Y-mAbs: "Our Board regularly reviews our business, including our strategy, the current state of the biopharmaceutical sector and the time and resources required to execute on our strategic plans. Following the thorough process to explore all of the potential paths forward for the Company, we are now moving forward with this agreement with SERB that we believe reflects the most attractive option available to Y-mAbs, providing significant, immediate and certain value to our stockholders."

Mr. Rossi continued: "This transaction is a testament to our team's hard work in building a strong foundation as a commercial organization with a differentiated, FDA-approved product in DANYELZA. We believe that Y-mAbs has made important progress advancing DANYELZA and our Radiopharmaceuticals platform. By combining our expertise and resources with SERB's specialty commercial capabilities, we can extend our shared commitment of improving the lives of even more patients and families on a global scale."

Transaction Details

Under the terms of the merger agreement, SERB is obligated to commence a tender offer by August 19, 2025, to purchase all of Y-mAbs' outstanding shares for $8.60 per share in cash. Assuming a majority of the outstanding Y-mAbs shares are tendered into, and not withdrawn from, the tender offer, and subject to the satisfaction of other customary conditions, including the receipt of a majority of Y-mAbs shares in the tender offer and expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act, SERB is required to close the tender offer, following which, Y-mAbs will be merged with a subsidiary of SERB. After such merger, Y-mAbs shares that were not tendered in the tender offer will be converted into the right to receive the same $8.60 per share in cash paid for shares in the tender offer, and Y-mAbs' stock will no longer be listed on the Nasdaq exchange.

Y-mAbs stockholders holding approximately 16% of Y-mAbs' outstanding shares of common stock have entered into a tender and support agreement with SERB, pursuant to which such stockholders have agreed, among other things, to tender all of their shares of Y-mAbs common stock in the tender offer, subject to the terms and conditions of such agreement.

The transaction is expected to close by the fourth quarter of 2025.

Specialty pharma SERB to buy Y-mAbs in $412M all-cash deal

Endpoints

5 August 2025

By Kyle LaHucik

Specialty drugmaker SERB Pharmaceuticals plans to buy cancer biotech Y-mAbs Therapeutics to further broaden its portfolio of more than 70 medicines.

SERB will pay $8.60 per share to buy Y-mAbs $YMAB, the companies said Tuesday morning. Y-mAbs' stock price skyrocketed 103% to $8.51 apiece, nearly matching the buyout price, in afternoon trading.

The all-cash deal places a $412 million equity value on the New Jersey and Danish biotech, which markets a neuroblastoma treatment called Danyelza, a GD2 antibody that was approved in November 2020. In May, the biotech guided to full-year 2025 revenues of $75 million to $90 million.

Over the years, Y-mAbs had faced multiple setbacks, including the FDA's rejection of its other neuroblastoma drug called omburtamab. It resorted to multiple rounds of layoffs. The company was founded in 2015 by Thomas Gad, whose daughter was diagnosed with high-risk neuroblastoma at a young age. The startup went public via a $96 million IPO in September 2018.

More recently, Y-mAbs had also been building out an early-stage pipeline in the hot radiopharmaceuticals space to pad its longer-term future. SERB CEO Vanessa Wolfeler told Endpoints News that the company will work with Y-mAbs and others to "find the best path for this platform."

In the deal announcement, Y-mAbs said its sale process involved talks with "numerous potential buyers" for the company, for Danyelza on its own, and for the radiopharmaceutical unit as a standalone. The board also looked at "potential sources of additional capital" to keep its pipeline R&D humming.

A growing pharma

SERB's Y-mAbs deal could be further augmented by additional acquisitions, Wolfeler said. Business development has been a core strategy for the pharmaceutical company over the years, including last year's deal to land a frostbite treatment from CiVi Biopharma.

One of its biggest deals to date was the $800 million cash purchase of BTG Specialty Pharmaceuticals. That deal, which closed in 2021, included three drugs that were expected to garner a total of $210 million in revenue in 2020.

SERB plans to continue growing across more disease areas and patient populations, said Wolfeler, who joined last year after leading Sanofi's US Dupixent business and rare disease franchise. Growth could come via label expansion and new indications for existing treatments and acquisitions.

That growth could also come via geographic expansion. The company directly sells medicines in 18 countries and supplies treatments in more than 100 countries, according to its website.

“We have a lot of products that are not necessarily launched across all geographies, and we have a global platform that we can leverage to continue to expand into new geographies,” Wolfeler said.

SERB is currently about a $400 million-per-year revenue company, Wolfeler said. The goal is to grow to $1 billion per year in revenues, she added.

The company has more than 500 employees, with about one-third each in the US, UK and rest of Europe, the CEO said. It is backed by private equity firms Charterhouse Capital Partners, Partners Group and Mérieux Equity Partners, among others.
